“ I will always remember the way Jeff glowed when he spoke of his Angie. I also will remember her fierce loyalty to Jeff when he was so very sick this year. I only met her in person at their wedding, yet when Jeff saw us for a few hours when he drove truck near us, it felt like she was there too, by way of Jeff talking about her. It is obvious they were made for each other.

“ We met when you bought those blingy bracelets from me. Purple with butterflies. I remember the ones I made you well. Every time I saw a butterfly charm it made me think of you. I bought every one I saw in case you wanted another one. I kept purple beads on hand always. We had some good chats in our groups. My heart breaks for your family. I pray they find peace and comfort in the months ahead. Rest easy, friend. May you walk the halls of Glory, surrounded by the shining light that was your spirit in life. See you on the other side.....

“ We skipped school one day in Wann. We went to your house and very carefully opened up one of your Christmas presents under the tree. It was a "Dirty Dancing" cassette tape. We played it over and over that day. Back then it was the rage. Before your parents came home we carefully wrapped it back up and put it back under the tree.

So many memories. But we always brought that back up to each other and laughed about it.

I will miss our sushi dates at our favorite restaurant.

Coming home was to visit my family. And you were always my family. Not just my best friend. How do I come home and know you will not be there? How you were always there just a phone call away no matter where I was currently working at? I miss you so.
