Jason I am so sorry about your mom. She was the sweetest Christian woman and the best math teacher I ever had in school. I learned so much from her. She truly loved Jesus with all her heart and a great example of how we are to strive to be as Jesus. The love she always showed. I had the pleasure of knowing her later years in my life as well. We would have wonderful talks about Jesus. Jason, you know she is still watching over you and now in glory with her saviour Jesus Christ enjoying every moment. Heaven truly gained a precious Angel! I love you and until we meet again in Heaven!!

One of the most precious people I have ever met. I truly respected her as a teacher but one thing that was very clear to me was her love for Jesus. She was a very special lady.

“ Onetta and Jason were special to everyone that knew them. Attended Church with them for many years. Attended Bible Studies and Sunday School with them. She was more than a teacher. She was the sweetest kindest person I ever met. Always allowed others to ask questions when we didn't understand, and would explain the answer in a way you went away understanding just what the answer to your question was and you didn't forget or have to ask again. May you find Comfort and peace above all.

“ She was the best math teacher ever! I went on to tutor for many years with the math skills she taught me. Sometimes, I battled to understand. She always had a way of listening, putting on her red lipstick (teaching me to call it our warpaint), then settled down with me and taught me to not only understand, but to love it as well. Warm prayers and thoughts to the family! Jason, we shared many classes together. Know that you are in my prayers as well. Angela Glover Chai

“ She was a wonderful woman. She was my algebra teacher in Dewey, and she was the very reason I learned to love algebra! She was an excellent teacher. She later taught my daughter's college algebra class at OWU.

I enjoyed seeing her and visiting occasionally through the years. Her faith was spoken of often with great joy. Thankful to have known her.
